Peculiar but meaningful sounds like this are commonplace to Austin English classes.

Taught by English Department head Mr. Thomas E. Bailey and Austin graduate Robert Neveux, the class features Marshall McLuhan's idea of demonstrative and project teaching.

Mr. John Joseph handles the Junior English classes with his usual dexterity, while Mr. Gino Perri and Mr. Neveux instruct the sophomores in journalism and specific creative writing. Grammar and vocabulary is the base for the freshmen, who cement the basic needs for their future English endeavors.

The English Department also conducts various English Symposiums, as well as the Augustinian Speech Festival. Winners from the festival advanced to State Forensic and Genesian contests.

art expands the mind

When an Austin student wishes to express himself, he may use a number of methods. He may speak, or he may write, or he may do as some did this year — turn to art.

Fine Arts has stepped into a new vogue. The classes formerly conducted after school, were incorporated into the school day. This enabled many students who may have been occupied after school to participate in this program of guided expression. Art enables the student to create, and what he accomplished is a part of himself.

In addition an individual study course was arranged for more experienced students, enabling them to work on their own on more advanced projects. This, as well as the regular art course, was under the guidance of Father Donald Bates.

The art students this year strove to produce. They produced paintings, sculptures, and collages. Through these creations, ideas were put into being.

buy, sell, type, draw . . .

Strolling down the second floor hallway, one may hear the typical classroom sounds like "Open your books . . .," and "All right, keep it down!" However, room 25 is an exception; for through the door marked "Typing" comes popular sombas and fox trots to drill the nimble-fingered students on the all-important element of rhythm.

The Practical Arts Department also offers accounting, economics, marketing, and mechanical drawing. Returning to Austin to teach was Mr. Louis Martilotta, who instructs his students to "improve their skills in any way possible."

Both Mr. Youngblood and Mr. Martillotta have their courses slanted towards the college education level, preparing the students with the basics in each area.

around the world in 180 days

"History is just something out of the past. It's meaningless to what's happening today so why should we learn it?"

Our fast-moving world sometimes makes this attitude common to students. True, social studies are based on ancient people and ancient events. To say that the past is unimportant, however, is far from a realistic statement. The background of each law, political party and authority itself is essential to the understanding of "what's happening today"; and "what's happening" is a part of your way of life.

Department head Mr. John Geller, assisted by Mr. Gino Perri and Mr. Rudolph Caspar covered both the "what" and "why's" of Government, U.S. History and World History. A new elective course added to the schedule was World Problems, which discussed natural and international government and current events.

it's not just "what, but why?"

Observe, experiment, infer, conclude . . .

Science is more to the student than the simple memorizing of facts and formulas. It is a field that challenges the student to probe into a problem until an answer can be drawn.

Fr. Frederick Taggart assumed the position of science department chairman following the transfer of Fr. Martin Sobiesk. Fr. Taggart expanded the program to include Harvard Project Physics, which he teaches in addition to regular senior physics.

Mr. Melvin Giovannucci instructs the sophomores in biology, emphasizing lab work plus the knowledge of specific scientific terms. Chemistry is handled by newcomer Mr. Michael Padilla, an Austin graduate of 1963.

mathematics — a vital tool for the brain

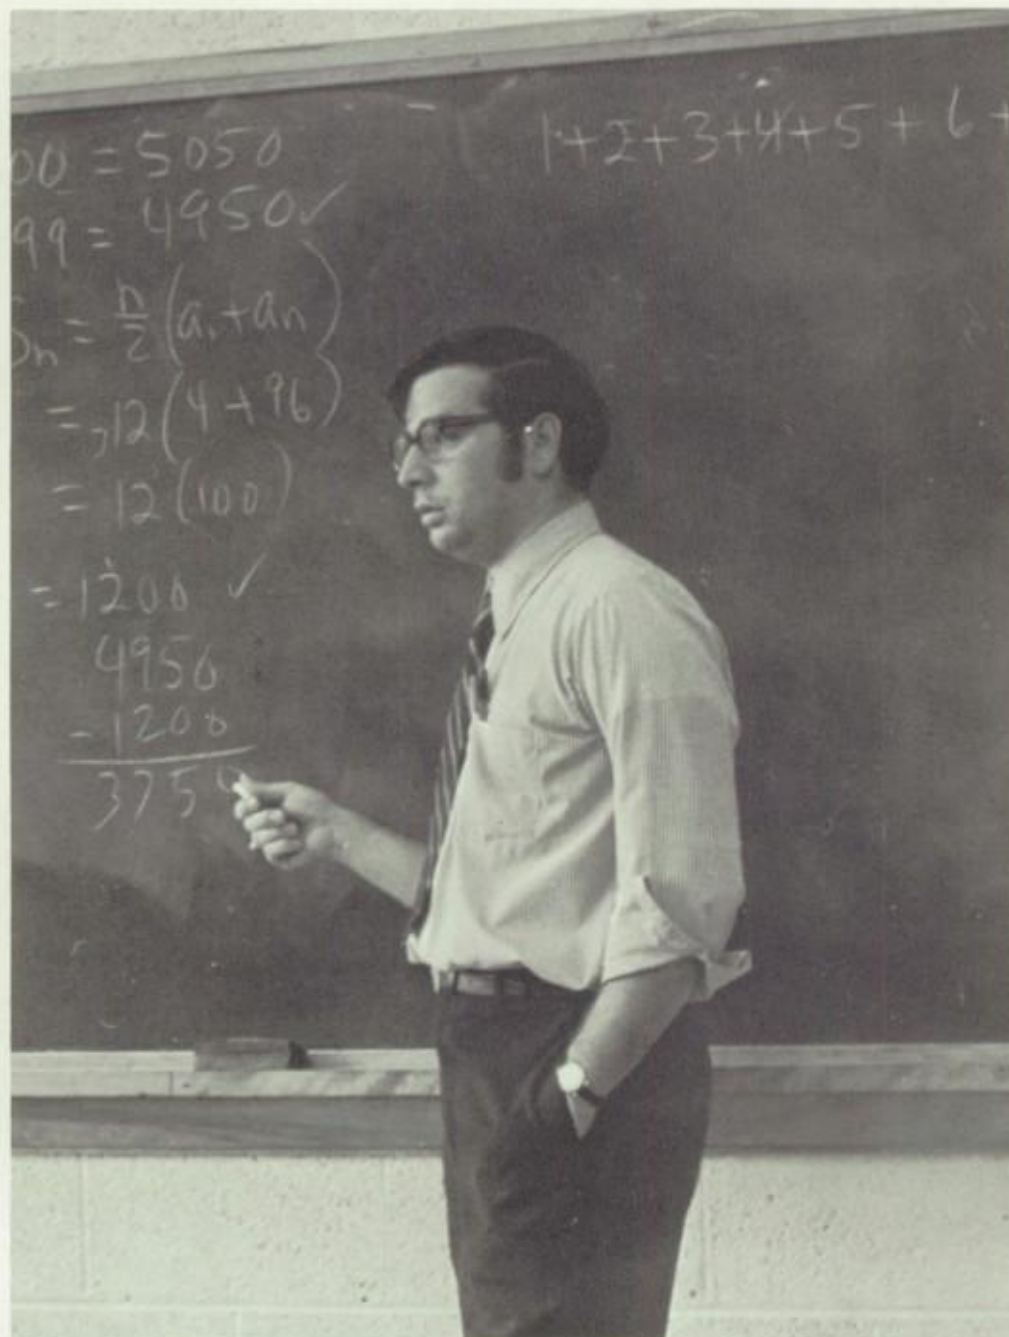

"The science that treats of the measurements, properties, and relations of quantities, including arithmetic, geometry, algebra, trigonometry, etc."

A typical definition of mathematics, copied out of the dictionary. Math is a science that employs a variety of methods to answer a variety of problems. In other words, math is a tool.

A complete understanding of the different areas of math is essential in preparation for college courses. Algebra, geometry, and trigonometry each stress the hows and whys of the problems facing the student. Department chairman Mr. Lawrence Rancilio tied this in to his Senior trigonometry and calculus courses. Mr. Louis Martilotta, Mr. Alfred Fiori, Fr. Joseph Hartman, and Fr. theology inspires education

"How many roads must a man walk down, before they call him a man?" So goes a line from Bob Dylan's, "Blowin' in the Wind."

High school is only one road that one must travel on his way to manhood. The religion taught at Austin guides the student down this "road"; not through liturgy alone, but through the Catholic Spirit which is present in each class, game, and event.

Under new direction of Fr. William Sullivan, the theology department introduced the elective system into this year's religious courses for juniors and seniors. Students could choose four different aspects of modern religion, ranging from "Race" to "Church Involvement."

Fr. Robert Gardella assisted Fr. Sullivan in the various courses offered. A program of student-written liturgy was also originated, making Mass more relevant to the students attending.

phys. ed. develops men

Take forty high school boys. Add a gym shirt, gym shorts, beat-up tennis shoes, white sox, and a towel. Send them into a classroom and develop them to the same as if they wore suit coats and ties.

The "classroom", of course, is the gymnasium. Any high school must develop the physical aspects of its students as well as prepare their mental abilities. Austin's Physical Education Department is essential in reaching the goal.

Mr. Frank Chickowski expands this year's program to include "Rules of Physical Education." This elective course teaches technical rules of various sports, allowing for a more complete knowledge of the game in study.

The intramural program and regular physical education classes remained unchanged in 1971, Basketball, Football, and volleyball are rotated during the year, each sport offered during its normal season.

unified staff is backbone of austin

You think of a high school, and you think of its students, its teachers, and its administration. Somewhere behind them, however, are people who perform the seemingly unimportant jobs like cooking, typing, filing, and organizing—the "staff".

A simple name for an essential group, the staff holds Austin together like green tape—always there, always dependable, always doing its job. This makes them equal to the importance of the students, teachers, and administrators.

Several changes occurred in this year's staff. Br. Augustine, transferred from Guadacanal took over the rough job of filling 600 empty stomachs in the cafeteria. Br. Joachim was promoted to Maintenance Department Head, Br. Tom became Head of Boiler and Repair, and Br. Chris worked as Fr. Hoffman's personal secretary. Mrs. Mary Ann Shipton was added to the office staff to fill in the position of Br. Chris.

spirit ignites homecoming festivities

Hectic, frantic, shoving, rushing, hurrying, crazy, zany, pushing. The Homecoming parade formed in Austin's parking lot at 12:00 Saturday, October 27. The clowns and the decorated cars were judged; the queen, Leah Hanrahan, and her court were enshrined in the queens float; and at 1:20 the parade was off!

Led by the Freshmen and Sophomore creations, a radio and a football field respectively, the caravan travelled down Mack and onto Moross. The gigantic Junior float of a movable bear and a bear trap, followed by the fire engine Senior float brought up the end of the train.

The troupe rolled down spectator-lined Kercheval and on to Grosse Pointe High School at Fisher. The clowns disembarked and entertained the people before the game.

The results of the clown contest were Jeff Malooly in first, David Zehmphenig with second, and Richard David in third. Dennis O'Donoghue's decorated car with its "Chew 'Em Up" theme came in first. Bart Catalfio pulled down second and Tino Altese captured third prize.

parade, ball produce hectic weekend

With the rattle of swords and the clang of armor, the first couples waitzed over the drawbridge into the Homecoming Ball on the night of October 17. A giant tapestry of King Arthur of Camelot was the highlight of the medieval-decorated gymnasium for the 115 couples attending the gala event.

The Dance Committee had been handicapped with the new restriction on crepe paper by the Fire Department. This resulted in several new decoration ideas by John Van-Tiem and his hard working group. Flags, tinfoil, and plastic sheeting were used to their greatest extent.

The "Sunday Funnies" produced the accompaniment for the dancers until 11:30. Homecoming was over, and all that was left was the clean-up on Monday morning.

banquet recognizes austin athletes

The place is the Knights of Columbus Hall on East Warren. Austin students who have worked long and grueling hours file past the glass doors with their fathers and friends. Tonight these students will eat a delicious meal, receive recognition, and have an all-around good time; for this is the annual All-Sports Dinner.

Organized by Vice-Principal Fr. Thomas Osborne, the event was again a huge success. Following cocktails and dinner (which consisted of endless amounts of roast beef, chicken, and spaghetti) a talk was given by Judge Frank Szymanski, formerly a center for the Detroit Lions.

Each athlete present was then presented a small "A" pin, with the congratulations of Mr. Rancilio.

fall play satirizes business world

Sophistication finally came to Austin in 1970, in the unassuming form of a musical comedy. Under the laborous title of "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying", The Austin Players presented over two and a half hours of biting sarcasm, hilarious situations, rapid fire one-liners, and several show stopping songs. Spotlights were set and the stage door was opened on November 28, and the Pulitzer Prize winning musical was sprung. The spring lasted through until closing night two days later, November 30.

The show, written by Abe Burrows, traces the rise of J. Pierrepont Finch (played by Dennis Bailey) from window washer to Chairman of the Board in a matter of days. An innocent face and manner mask his rascalion machinations for fast and easy success up the executive ladder, while he overcomes various office grotesques. A nepotistic nephew named Frump (played by Pat Roney), his dimbulb uncle-president (Tino Altese) and his secretary sweet (Pat Gillespie) plus Rosemary Pilkington (Veronica Morgan) stand between him and success.

The teamwork of 125 people helped make the musical comedy a new chapter in the Players' scrapbook of successes that have long been associated with them and their director, Mr. Thomas Bailey.

Pierrepont Finch presents his first board room presentation which says absolutely ... nothing.

spotlights beam down on "business"

The title "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" is actually a bit misleading. Practicing began first with the dancers under the direction of Dennis Bailey in early October. Two dance numbers, "Coffee Break" and "A Secretary is not a Toy" were mastered to near perfection. The rehearsals began with the principals who learned blocking and lines before the chorus was brought in. The long string of full-cast practices began a month before opening night. "I Believe in You", a moving tribute to self-love, and "Brotherhood of Man" were undertaken by the boys, while across the hall the girls learned three part harmony for "Cinderella Darling" and "Paris Original."

Opening night loomed upon the cast like a Mack truck, and before another note could be wrongly hit, the curtain was opened on Finch. As he worked his way into the building, the cast could hear the audience open up like a flower. OOOOOHHHHH's could be heard as Finch explained to the personnel manager that he just bumped into the president. The cast worked hard and many of the seemingly dreary jokes received applause and laughter. The cast was satisfied. The director was satisfied. Even Abe Burrows would have been satisfied. And impressed.

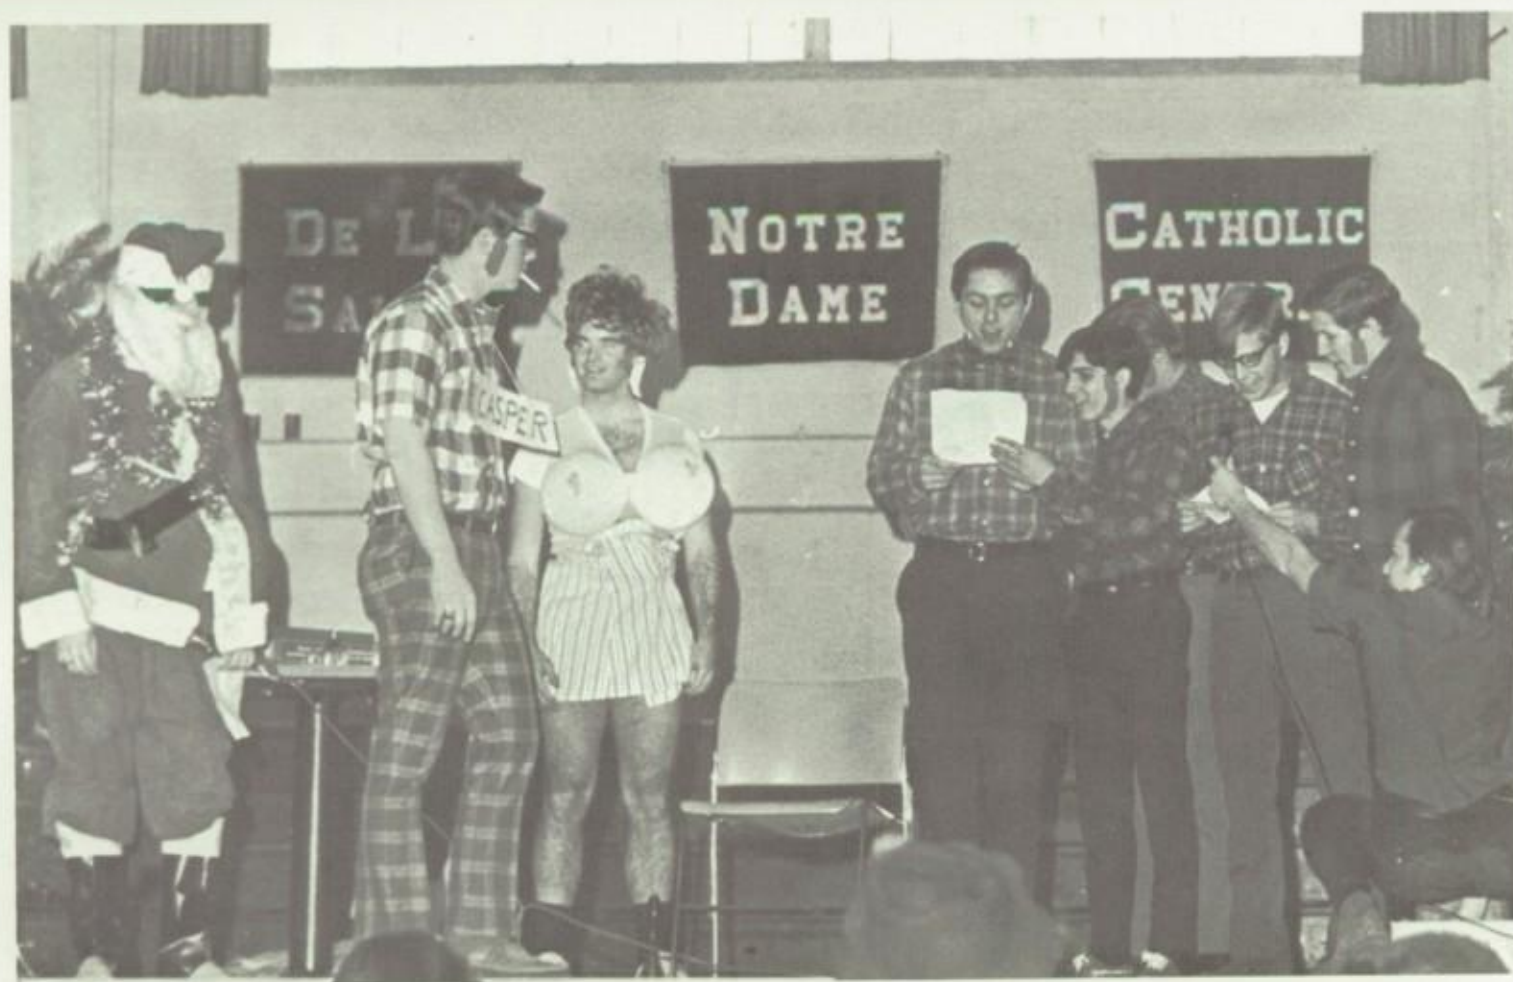

a little bit of fun, pun, and jest never hurts

Take about one-fourth of the Senior Class and give them the chance to mock their teachers. Add one combination of Don Rickles-Johnny Carson-Santa Claus, and the result is a hilarious Christmas Assembly.

As usual, the faculty was the main target in this year's pre-holiday production. Tom Kennedy, a last-minute replacement, handled the job of Santa Claus as never before. Several students played the roles of the faculty members and individuality strolled up to Santa to receive his special request.

Despite some severe satire, the faculty realized that all the mockery was done in the Christmas spirit.

parents and faculty enjoy holiday spirit

Despite the cancellation of the student's Christmas Ball in 1970, the parents and faculty still had then chance to sample some holiday spirits at the Parent-Faculty Christmas Party.

The Mother's Club and Dad's Club, directed by Mr. Edward Akers and Mrs. William DiVirgil, organized the party with cooperation from the faculty and the dance committee. The 125 people in attendance danced, laughed and socialized through the evening. Special thanks should be given to all the parents and faculty members who made the evening a success.

annual dinner benefits austin

The first of Autsin's yearly events that is essential in school financing is the Benefit Dinner. The dinner, held on January 22 at the Grosse Pointe Yacht Club, was organized through the efforts of Chairman George Simon and Fr. Robert Gardella. Approximately 250 Austin benefactors attended the dinner, which awarded a series of prizes through drawings. The grand prize was won by Mr. William Farrah.

This year, gold tie-tacs were awarded to those who had attended the annual dinner for ten years or more.

Also aiding Mr. Simon with organization were Mr. Robert Burchett, Mr. John Imesch, and Mr. James Creah.

costumes, balloons, fun create mardi gras mood

On one enchanted February evening, sixty-five costume clad couples gathered to be merry. Austin's otherwise dreary cafeteria was completely transformed under the dimmed lights and the crepe papered ceiling with the sounds of "The Collection" all around.

This wasn't Homecoming . . . this wasn't Christmas . . . it was the most recent addition to Austin's social calander, "Mardi Gras". This year's imaginative Student Senate replaced the traditional semi-formal Christmas dance with a Mardi Gras this year. Mardi Gras wasn't only a dance, but a whole series of events devoted to the Mardi Gras theme, beginning with the grand spaghetti-eating contest February 15 and ending on February 20 with the finale, which was the Mardi Gras dance.

Queen Raggedy Ann (Debbie Daudlin) and King Raggedy Andy (Jim Snella) were crowned by Don Hanna. Prizes were given to the couples sporting the most original costumes.

This year the Genesian Festival was held at Austin along with the annual Forensic tournament. For the year in D.C.F.L., Austin won the grand trophy for most wins. Major winners of the year included Ted Posselius in Children's Literature, Ronald Schramm in Original Oratory and Mike Rizzo in Humorous Interpretation. rallies are antidote for weekly blues

The glorious day of Friday occasionally meant more than the final day of another tiresome week. Shifting to schedule two, the students used every ounce of strength to trod down to the gym during last hour. Here they would shout and make more noise than they had during their entire 32 class hours during the past week; for this was an Austin pep rally.

The Student Senate and the Letterman's Club combined their efforts to organize the various assemblies throughout the year. In addition to pep rallies, other assemblies were conducted for a number of reasons: the Frosh Welcome Assembly, where the beloved freshmen were greeted into high school life with a smile; the Christmas Assembly, starring Santa (Tom Kennedy) Claus, where the seniors had the chance to mock the faculty; and the Senior Farewell Assembly, where the seniors were mocked in return.

A number of homeroom gatherings also highlighted the year. The forensic and academic talents of certain students were honored at the Augustinian Speech Assembly and Honors Convocation. The University of Detroit Singing Titans performed for Austin during January.

student senate, the voice of austin

From the Freshman Assembly to the Proms, one group of students was the backbone for virtually all Austin events — the Student Senate.

Fearlessly guided by "your friendly Activities Director" Mr. Edward Higbee, the Student Senate undertook various responsibilities throughout the year. Included in these were the addition of a pop machine and juke box in the cafeteria, providing even more for the already cultured mess hall.

President Don Hanna, Vice-President John Knox, Secretary John Donnelly, and Treasurer John Cobb were elected in the May of 1970. The early election allowed for organizational time during the summer months.

Probably the biggest innovation this year was the Mardi Gras. Replacing the Christmas Dance, the Mardi Gras gave February a new activity. Highlites of Mardi Gras week were a spaghetti eating contest and a dropping of the dress code for a day.

letter sweaters are perma-press

The time is 12:10. A dozen freshmen are seated at a table in the crowded cafeteria, relaxing before their fifth hour class. Suddenly, a black shadow forms an image on the table top. Looking up, they see a member of the Letterman's Club.

"O.K., let's move. You guys clean the first row."

The following five minutes are spent carrying empty cartons and wiping tables, witnessed by the watchful eye of the letterman.

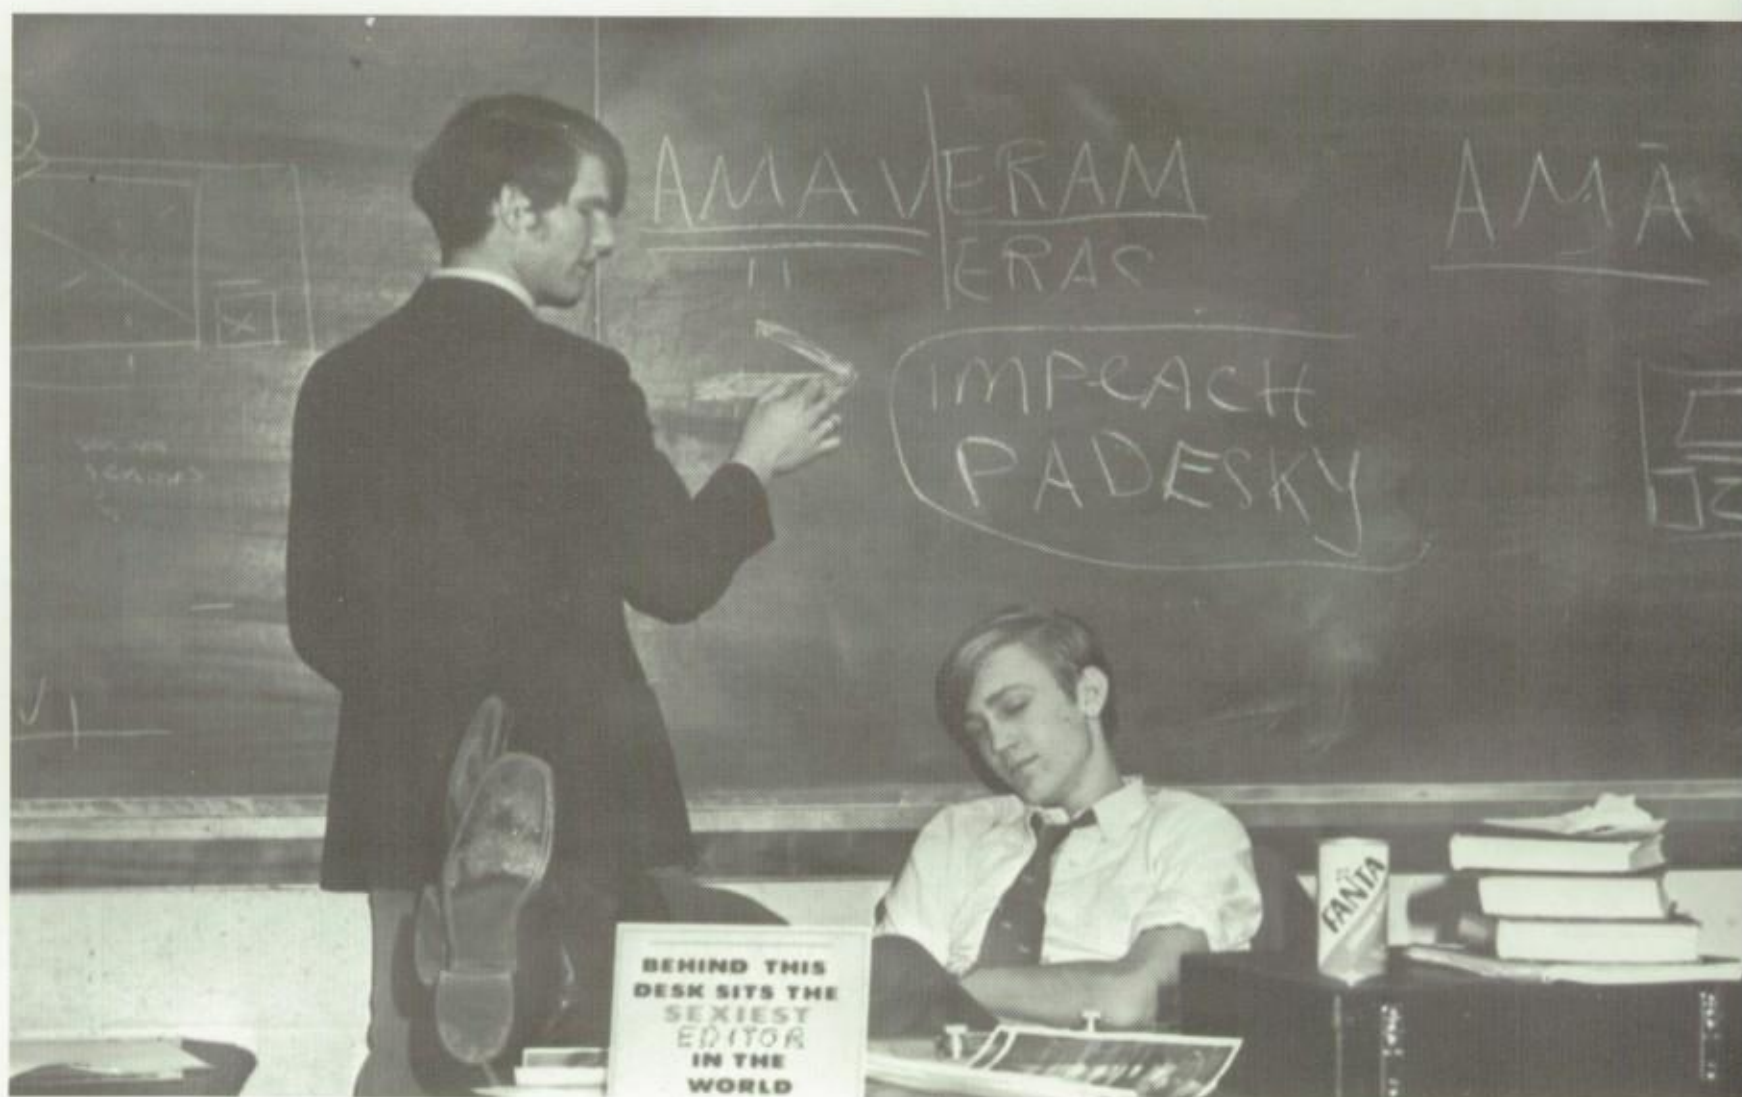

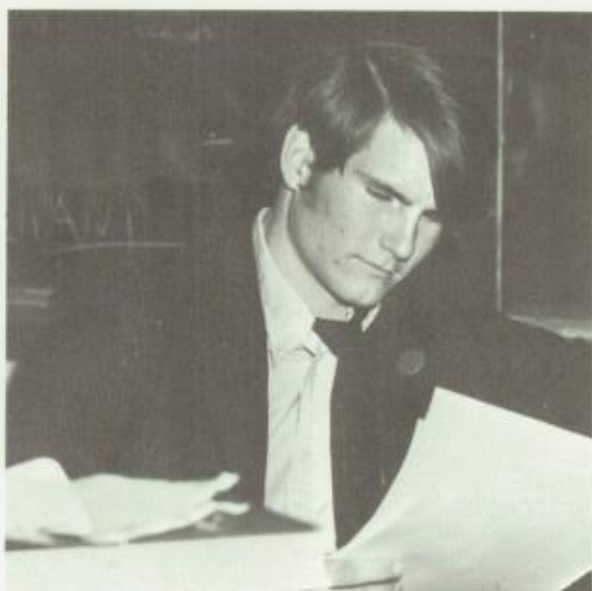

Although the cafeteria clean-up is one of the smaller functions of the Letterman's Club, it is a good example of its involvement in the Austin Community. Athletic Director Fr. Thomas Osborne worked with the four officers to give the organization a more important position in Austin's activities program.

deadlines, layouts, darkrooms, copy reprint memories

It all started in early September with the first of many wide-eyed freshman putting his foot in the door. Both the 1971 school year and the 1971 Yearbook began with that step.

There was the Frosh Assembly, the shaving cream showcase. And the Homecoming game, floats and parade. The Fall Play and the basketball, swimming, and hockey seasons were next. Then came the Forensic Tournament and the One-Act plays, followed by a barrage of spring sports and the Fiesta. And somewhere in that mess came the Coffee House, the Pep Rallies, and all that studying you did for the Semester Exams. Finally, graduation.

A yearbook, unlike a newspaper, is made to be kept for years to come. It will help you remember all the things you loved and hated about high school. It take you back to the time of innocence and confidences. And what a time it was.

newspaper changes location , style

In case some students haven't noticed, there is a series of offices located between the Main Office and the school chapel. Quietly tiptoeing by, one can usually pick up comments like "I have an appointment . . . " and "Well, we can transfer you to typing." However, a few more steps and a door boasting "Publications" appears on the right.

"Way to go, Schramm!"

"Hey Dick, we're out of paper!"

"Shut up Bailey, and finish your page!"

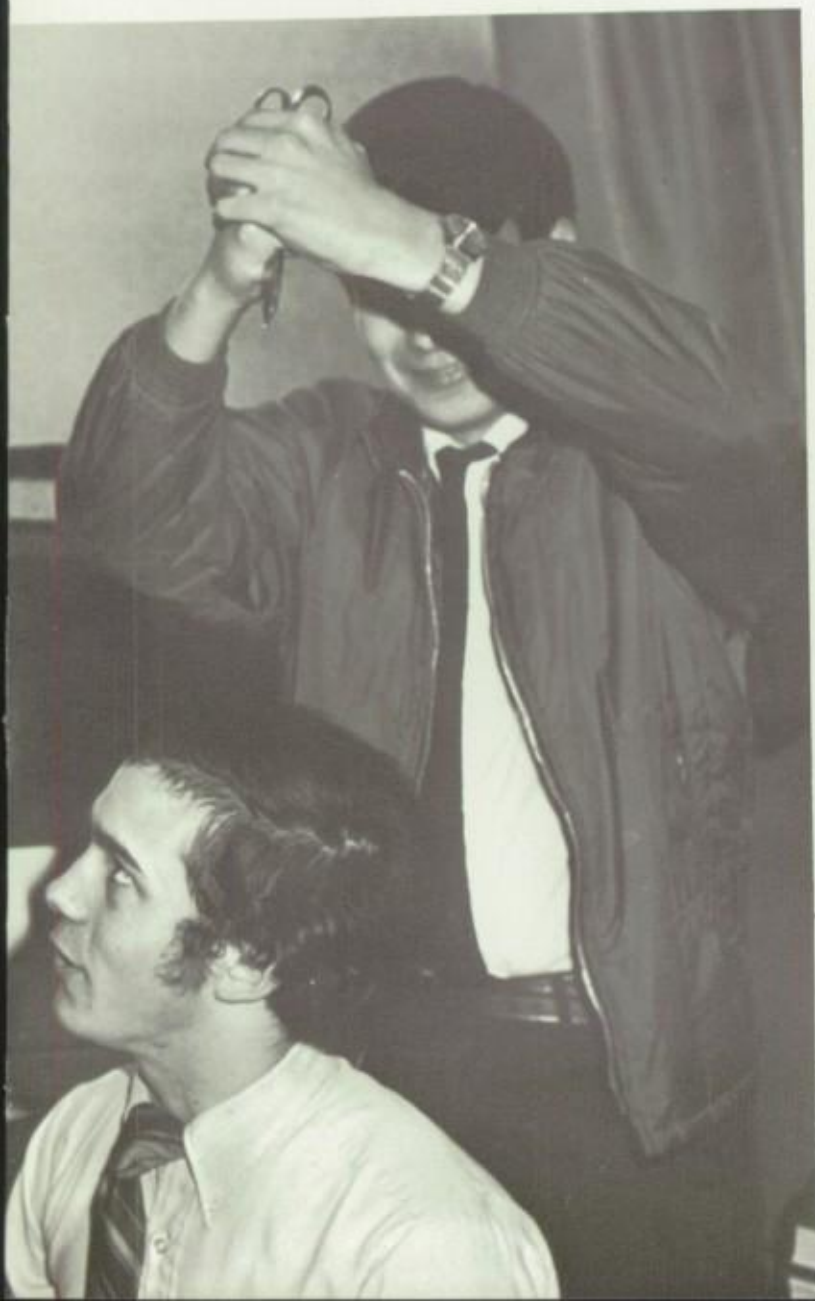

Abnormal as they may seem, comments like these are typical during the production of The Austin Friar.

The Friar staff worked hard to bring what many thought was the best school newspaper in years. Editors Rick Berschback, Dennis Bailey, Ed Doyle, and Paul Nehra organized the paper to inform the students and also give them the chance to voice opinions through "Letters to the Editor." Vital assistants were Mike Rizzo, Ron Schramm, and Paul Raykov, as well as a host of writers. Moderator of The Friar was Mr. Gino Perri.

dance committee takes new role

Austin's 1970-71 version of the group traditionally known as the Dance Committee began early this year by setting up for the annual "Parents Meet the Faculty Night". Under the direction of the "friendly activities director" Mr. Edward Higbee, and Fr. William Sullivan, the intimate group of about 20 assembled the decorations for all the events during the school year. From the hay in the manger to the lights for the coffee houses, Chairman John Van Tiem made sure that everything went smoothly. Since the poor attendance greatly reduced the number of dances, the committee needed less members than before. However, the Homecoming Dance, Parent's Christmas Dance, and Spring Fiesta kept the dance committee working. In addition, the committee also handled decorations for the Mardi Gras held on February 20.

stage crew sweats behind scenes

Musicals are infamous for being difficult to do because it takes longer for things to gell. The director seems to get madder with musicals. The songs are not easy to learn. Musical have too much dancing. Musical have more lines. Musical aren't nice. The Stage Crew works like heck.

Those little guys who ran back and forth dressed in black between scenes are known as the stage crew. "How To Succeed" was a framework for the crew to display their unique talents. Some scenes in the play were only seconds long and the crew had to stay behing the screens and then move them on cue. Lead by Billy DiVirgil, they stealthily held the show together with out letting the cast know it.

This makes the dancing seem easy. The songs seem easier to learn. Things gell. The director seems to be nicer. The musical no longer is hard to do, but really fun. Musical are nice.

the n.h.s. says, "it's smart to be smart"

Austin's chapter of the National Honor Society set its 1971 goal of becoming a more functional organization than in previous years. Under the direction of moderator Mr. Charles Berdan and President Paul Nehra, the NHS achieved this goal through a series of school activities.

The annual Career Day was again sponsored by the N.H.S. on March 26. Here, professionals from different fields of study lectured to students interested in that field.

The N.H.S. also offered free tutoring to underclassmen having trouble in their studies, particularly in mathematics. On November 29, members of the Society acted as tour guides during the Austin Open House, in which numerous eighth-graders and their parents were given a glimpse of Austin's curriculum and facilities.

academy supplies coffee and songs

High school students possess a certain kind of talent. It is a talent all their own, far different from those of the polished individuals that they become in the future. This is a talent of expression and spontaneous honesty.

Sunday night was usually the time to do the homework that you kept putting off from Saturday night to Sunday morning to Sunday afternoon. However, some Sunday nights let students show their special talents in the Austin Coffee Houses.

The Austin Academy organized the Coffee Houses, which were switched from the cafeteria to the carpeted lobby this year. They highlighted the weekend, while simultaneously offering the best of entertainment for Austin and the neighboring high schools. Director of the Coffee Houses was Pat Roney.

The Academy, moderated by Mr. Thomas E. Bailey, also handled the Film Festival and the Book Fairs.

old faces never die or lose interest

Going to high school does not simply mean four years of hard work and great times. When you graduate, it doesn't mean that you're through with high school for good. This is because of a certain pride that you've built within yourself during those four years; a pride too great to be forgotten with the receiving of a sheet of paper entitled "Diploma".

This is why the Austin Alumni is a major part of the Austin Community. An eighteen member board of directors meets regularly to plan social activities, establish better communication, and make the organization a worthwhile one. Newly elected officers include Vincent LoCicero ('60) as chairman, Donald Berschback ('60) as vice-chairman, Robert Berschback ('68) as corresponding secretary, Thomas Cammareta ('64) as recording secretary, and Philip Tremonti ('61) as treasurer.

Bingo!

Prior to this year, you rarely heard this funny little word around Austin. 1971, however, saw Tuesday Night become "Bingo Night".

Organized by the Alumni Parents Association, with Mr. Dick Motschall as president, the bingo nights are expected to profit around $50,000.

The Mother's Club and Dad's Club also took this important roles of financing Austin. The $100-a-Plate Dinner and the Spring Fiesta were again successfully run by the parents. harriers hurdle obstacles to victory

Do you remember, back in the early weeks of school, seeing a group of gray-clad runners working out at Balduck Park, stepping around baseball diamonds and jogging up and down hills? This was the Austin Cross-Country team, and that fellow shouting encouragement and giving advice was their hard-working, hard-driving coach Mr. Fedoruk.

This year's team began practicing in midsummer in order to prepare them for a season of twelve meets. This early start, Mr. Fedoruk felt, would make them tougher competitors. He was right. The team, under the leadership of All-City Bob Hammer, won five of their meets. Not all their meets were victories, but the teams showing was the best in the history of Austin Cross-Country. They were able to take third place in the Central Division.

Next year promises to be another good one for the distance runners. Although the team will lose several outstanding seniors, there are some fine underclassmen runners who through their experience will make up a fine team.

varsity strives for victory, but—

Reading a football article, one might expect several victories brilliantly dramatized and the losses quietly mentioned. Austin began its year with hopes of achieving a successful season filled with these dramatic victories, but the victories never came.

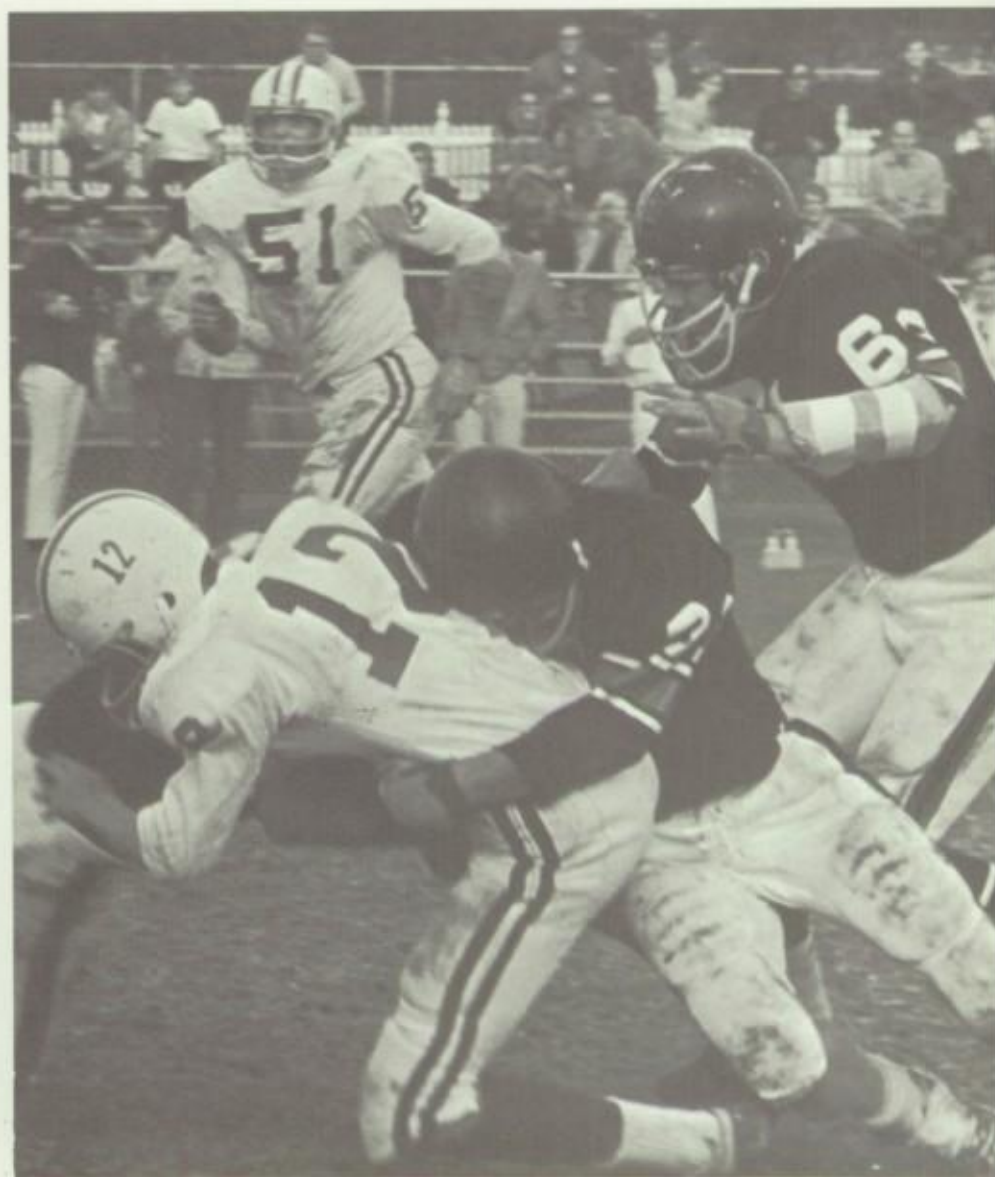

For the first time in the school's history, the varsity football team was winless. Although the Friars were close on many occasions, the thrill of victory was never brought back to the 1st or 2nd floor hallways. Instead, Monday mornings were filled with disappointed faces and shakes of the head.

Defeat on the field, however, does not mean defeat of purpose. The players labored hard from August to October, always confident that the next game would be a victory. The White Shirted Legion was there, as always, cheering from start to finish, regardless of the lopsided score. The team and the cheers united to form the spirit that makes Austin what it is; and that is what changed an 0-8 record into a success.

individuals work, drive, fight

Although the Austin football team suffered, on the whole, a very disappointing season, the year was brightened by the individual performances of a few of the members of the team. "Mr. Rance" praised the players by saying, "These boys put out a fine effort. They put in a lot of hard practice."

At defensive center this year, as well as offensive guard, was John Donnelly. John, captain of the team, did a thorough job of breaking up a number of the opponents' plays. For his efforts, John was awarded a place on the All-City team as well as a spot on the All-Catholic League squad.

One position which requires great responsibility is center. Austin was fortunate to have for its center Jim Bury. Coach Rancilio commented that, "He's a very consistent player." Jim slammed the ball to the quarterback from the first play of the season to the last.

A Junior and a varsity member for three years, Tim Gormely awed all with his performance at right offensive tackle and right defensive guard. Mr. Rancilio looks forward to another year of Tim's talent.

Dave Gilin, left offensive guard for Austin, was able to make clear paths for Friar runners this year. Dave, a tough battler on the field, kept the team on the move.

Austin looks to the future with hopes for the same team components to be present in next year's team.

opponents intercept j.v. team's hopes

Football did not come to a halt with the end of a weekend. On those bright autumn afternoons, the Junior Varsity got its turn.

After a poor start, the J.V. rebounded with victories over DeLaSalle and U. of D. Just as the season seemed to be on an upswing though, the team ran into the tough Brother Rice and Notre Dame squads to close its season at two wins and four losses.

Halfbacks Bill Divirgil, Tom Mushro, and Paul Arnone led the J.V. offensive unit throughout 1970. The defense came up with a strong performance against DeLaSalle and U. of D., led by Matt Rucinski and Chris Cavanaugh.

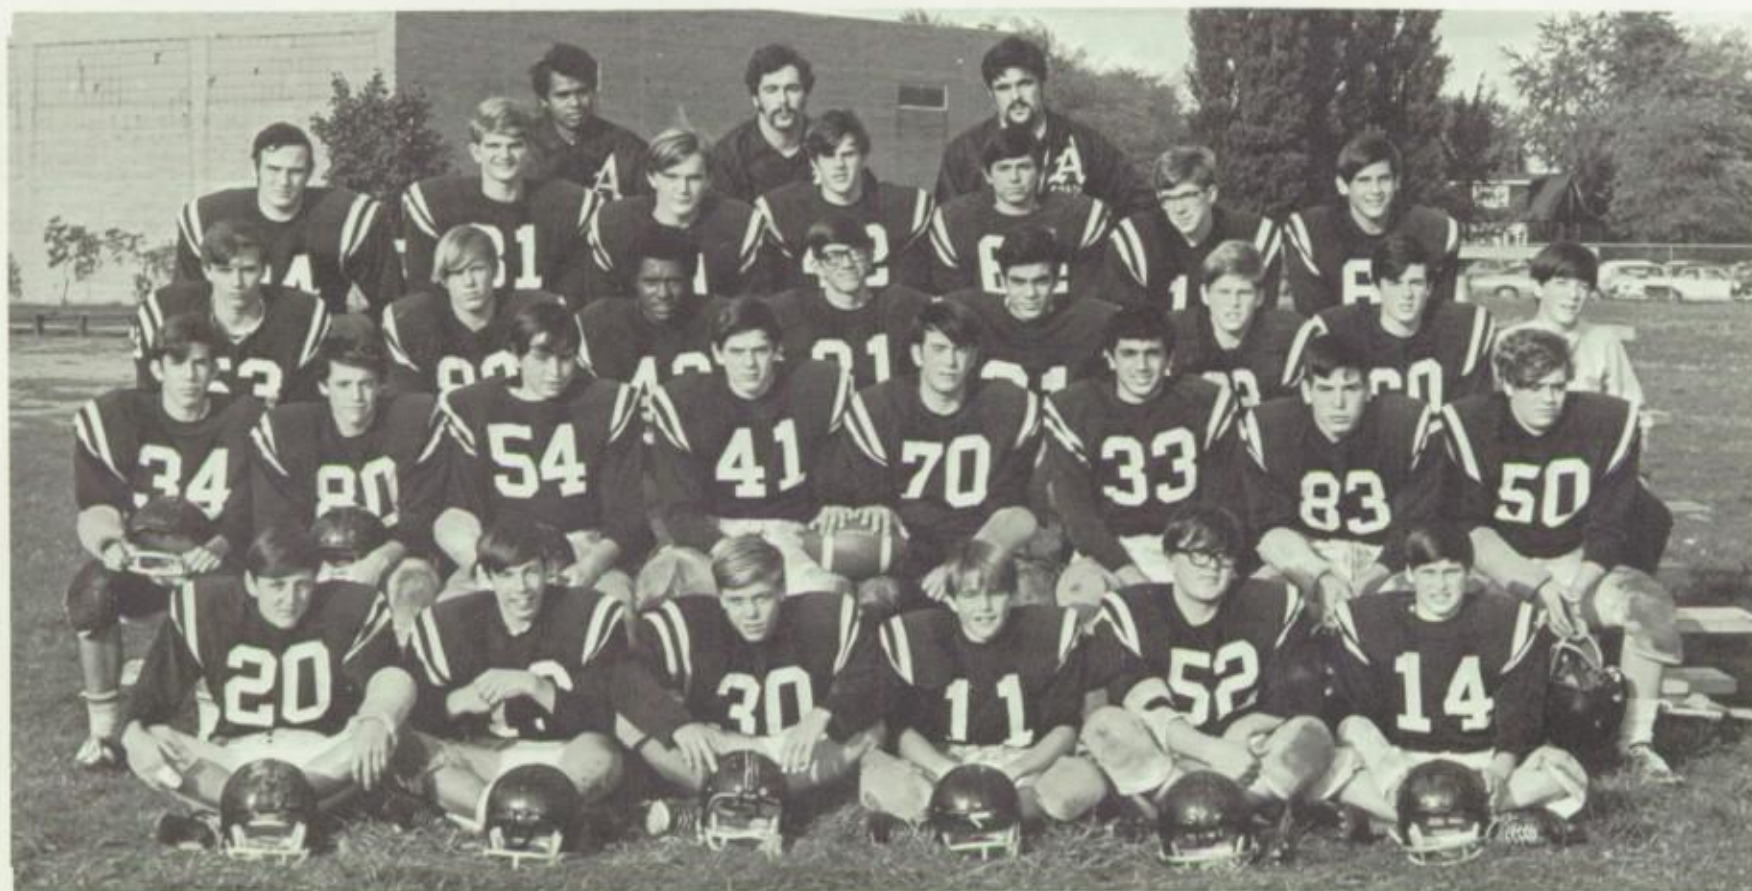

Mr. Bernard Cunningham coached the J.V. squad, with the assistance of the varsity coaches.

frosh brighten dismal gridiron season

The Freshmen turned out to be the brightest spot in Austin's three football squads. Following an excellent start of one tie and two victories, the team lost its bid for the championship by stumbling to Brother Rice and Notre Dame.

Leading the Frosh throughout the season were some outstanding players who should play prominent roles in next year's J.V. and Varsity teams. Halfbacks Gary Mushro, Joe Cusumano and end Tom Klumpp provided offensive spark, while Mark Capizzo and Dennis Dickson showed promise on defense. Co-captains of the team were Norm Hubbarth and Charles Bayer.

A new trio of coaches handled the Frosh for 1970. Rocco and Jack Yacobelli and Art Avecilla were greatly responsible for the 2-2-1 record.

tankers improve: await next year

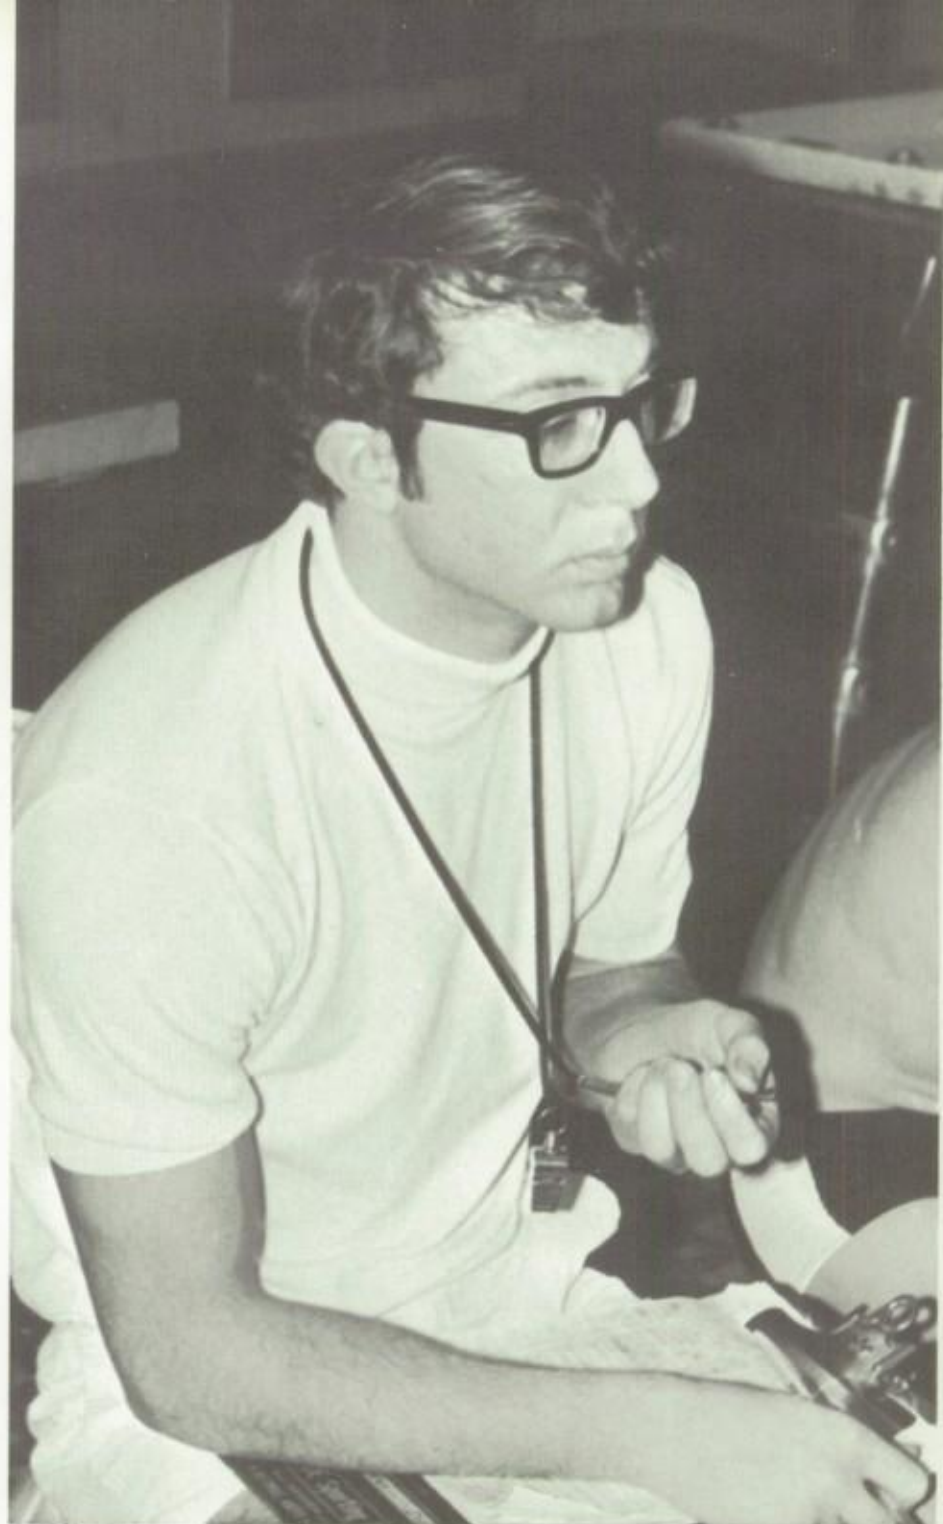

BANG! Splash, kick, stroke, reach, turn, push-off, kick . . . Familiar?

These were the sights and sounds of the torpedoing Tankers as they propelled themselves to six victories during the 1971 season.

Leading the acquarians in their surface attack were captains Bob Frear and Eric Hollerbach. The assault on the opposition was multifaceted with excellent execution of styles — breast stroke, butterfly, freestyle, and diving. However, the man behind the men was coach Tom Grunden.

The squad composition posted a 70% Junior majority. Therefore, many stars who blossomed this season will return to sink their opponents. One is Peter Joos, an all-city freshman, who set a school record this year in the individual medly.

However, the team has drawn water during the ensuing skirmishes. In their first meet, the Tankers struggled to keep their heads afloat as they narrowly defeated Catholic Central's representatives by a single point. In four other encounters with the opposition, though, our swimmers were sunk. Nevertheless, prospects are good and the future looms brightly for the tremendous Tankers.

pucksters look ahead to next season

"Next year we will win the division championship," was the optimistic prediction of Fr. John Shirley. The Varsity Hockey Team suffered a disappointing season as they lost 12 games and won 2. The team however, did exhibit puck prowess as they defeated Liggett in their first game of the Mayor's Cup Tournament. The outskating against Liggett led to high hopes which were soon squelched by an unusually outstanding performance by Lakeshore.

Coach Jim Howarth proclaims with great pride that 15 out of this year's 19 players will be returning next year. Austin pucksters Steve Brune, James Bury, David Gilin, and Emil Pascany will be graduating this year. Steve Brune, James Gotfredson and Rick Pascany received all-city awards for 1971.

austin kegglers go "on strike"

Ever hear of "The Super Bowl"? Of course you have. Football Championship, right? Joe Nammath and the Jets, right? Whatever happened to the Lions?

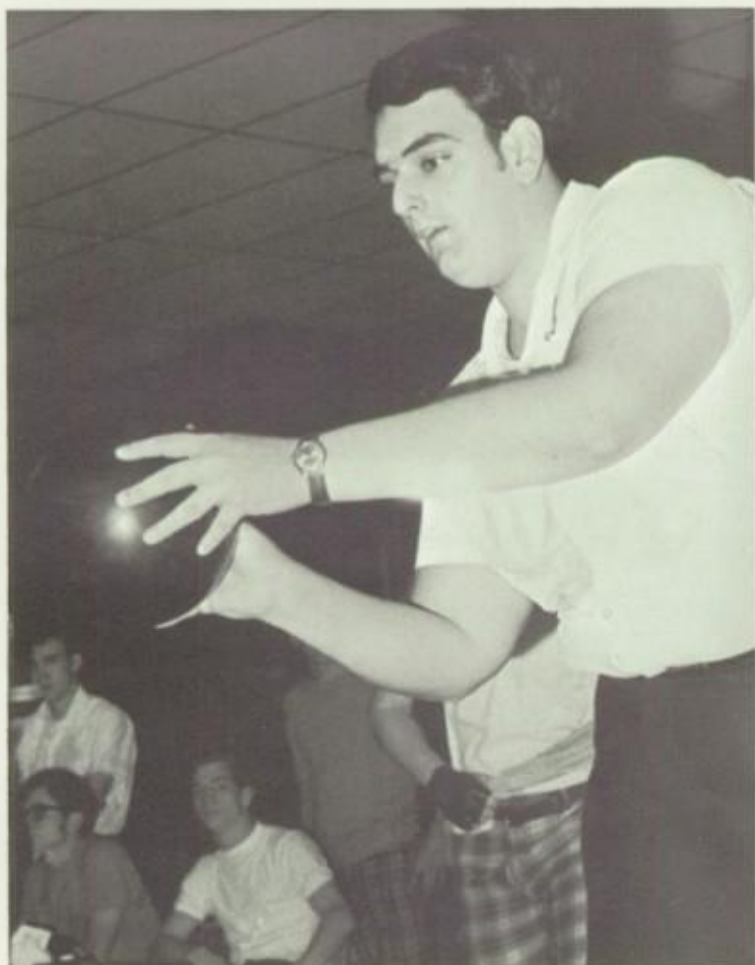

Well this page is not concerned about the Super Bowl, but instead about Austin's super-bowlers. The Austin Keggles completed another full year of "strolling down memory lane" as Senior Mike Rochowiak led the team to a fourth place finish.

Competing against Notre Dame, Servite, Bishop Gallager, DeLaSalle, Holy Redeemer, and St. Ladislaus, the Friars fought to a record of 29-14. Freshman Mike Meda was an individual standout, giving one steady performance after another.

It's difficult to find a word to describe the 1971 Varsity Basketball season. Finishing with a record of 8-9, the Friars offered both highlights and lowlights during the regular season.

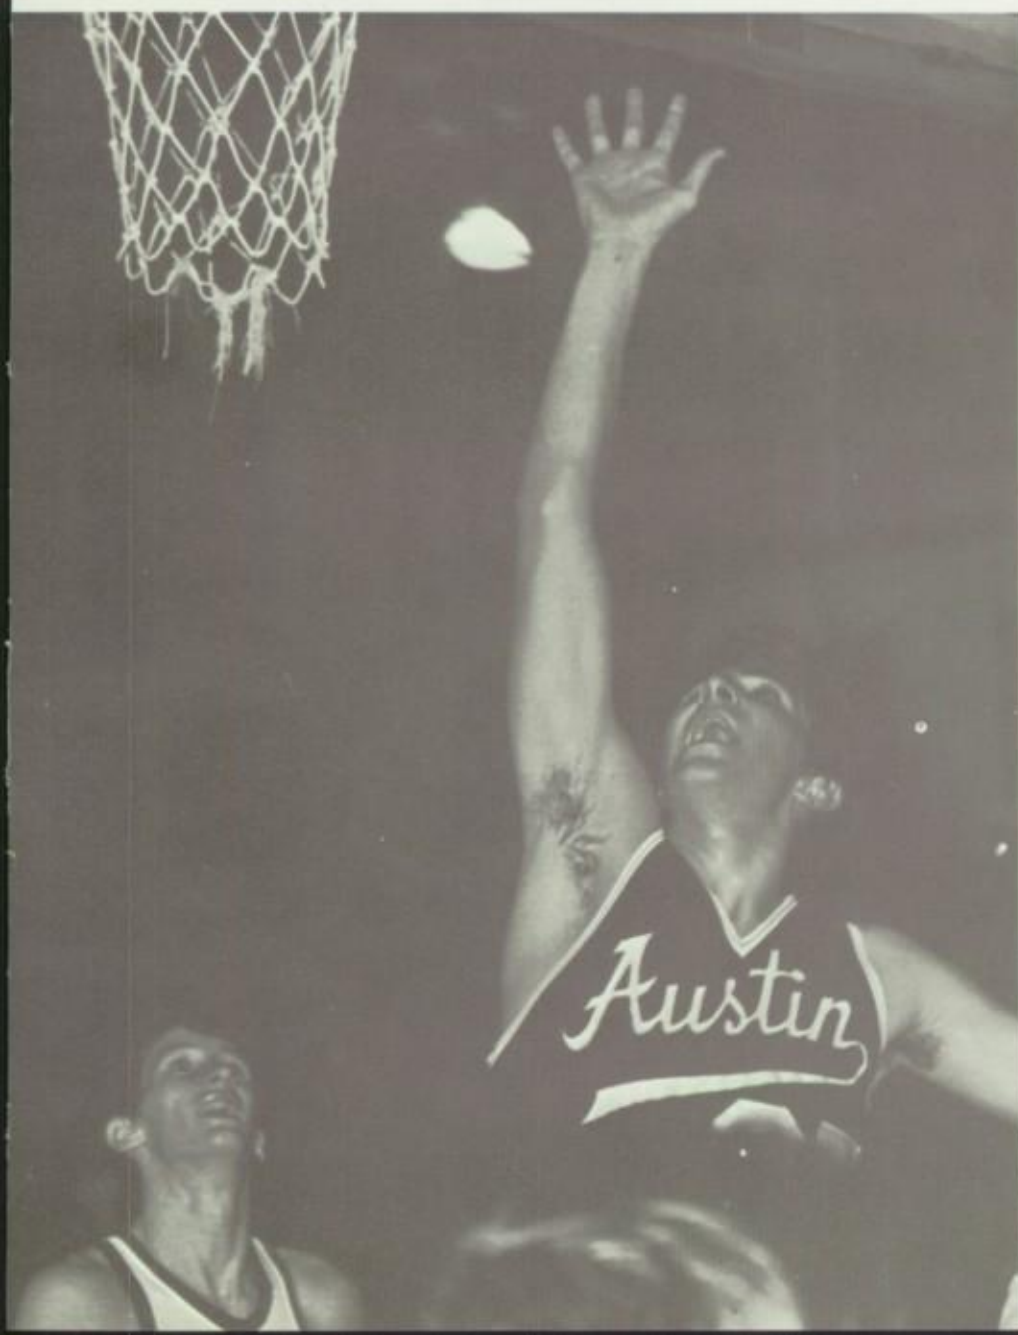

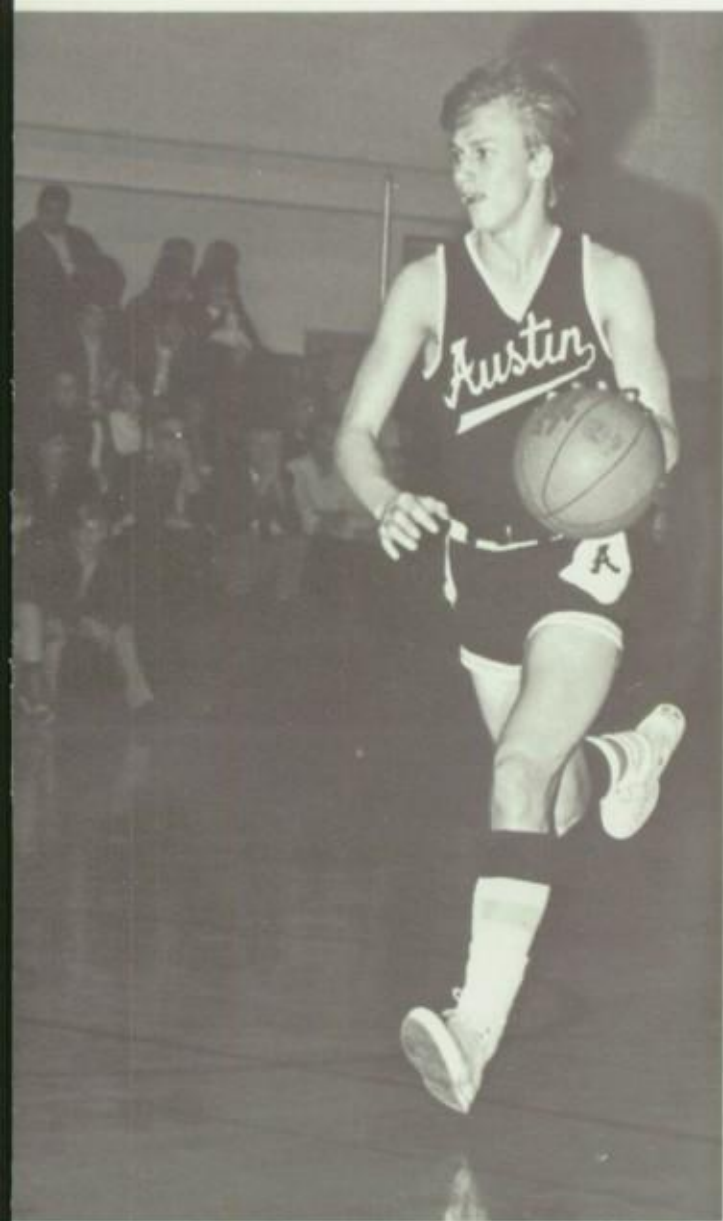

The team lacked one basic thing — momentum. An opening loss to Divine Child seemed to steal from the Friars the spark that led them to the 1970 Catholic Championship. Catholic Central and De La Salle sealed Austin's grave with four big victories.

Bright spots were numerous as well, however. Impressive victories against Notre Dame and U. of D. brought life to the team during mid-season. The momentum finally began to build with an upset Brother Rice toward the season finale.

Although the Friars were now ready for the state tournament, their hopes came to an abrupt halt against Grosse Pointe North.

The future looks better. Jim Ney and Frank Latona are the only starters not returning, while help should come up with center Charley Paye. With a little hustle, the Friars will again become a basketball power.

Following a .500 regular season, the Friars had the chance to start from scratch. The state tournaments stared them in the face.

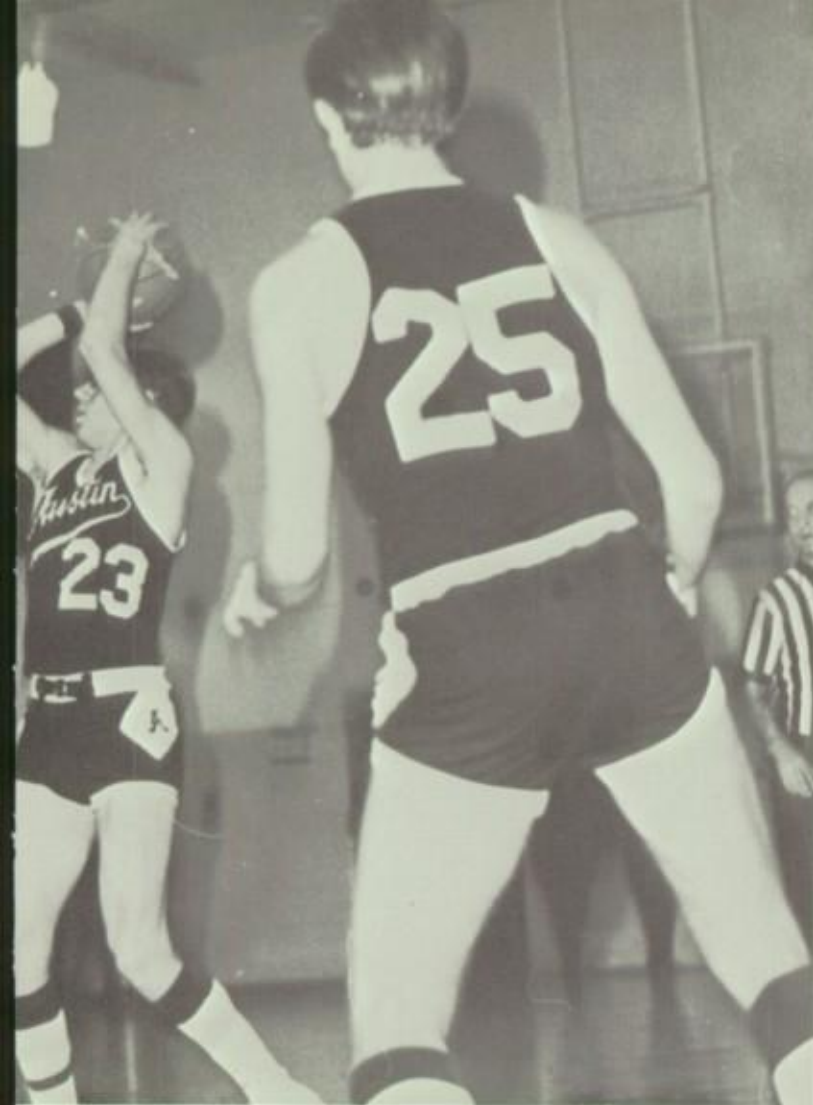

Austin drew public power Denby as its first opponent. Despite a tremendous height disadvantage, the Austin "five" turned in their best game of the season to defeat the TARS in double overtime, 82-76.

This was it. The Friars had finally proven themselves to be the team they were put out to be. Tension was at a peak as Austin met rival Grosse Pointe North.

The entire game was a see-saw. But the Austin fans vaguely recall that. All that is remembered was the sight of that ball sliding through the net at the buzzer. The white-shirted legion stood in shock as the scoreboard read: North 62, Austin 61.

Faces were blank. There was the gritting of teeth and watery eyes. A season that could have blossomed a "cinderella" team had ended.

teamwork is factor in j.v. championship

Late in the afternoon, while the shadows began to lengthen along the ground, a group of men cautiously entered the deserted school building. They suited up, trotted into the gym, and for the next hour and a half bellows of enraged displeasure echoed throughout the building.

After grueling practice in which Coach Molley stresses execution through many drills, the Junior Varsity basketball team showered and staggered home. This is a profile of the championship basketball team at Austin this year. They defeated 11 straight adversaries to post a 14 and 3 record which was good enough to take the first place trophy in the central division Class A.

There were two extremely tense moments during the season. In the first game against Brother Rice, Austin slashed their way to a victory by 3 points in overtime. The J.V. team raced down to the wire with C.C.'s team. Austin defeated C.C., and broke the tie to take first place.

Although the team was led in scoring by impressive 6'7" center Charlie Paye, the major factor in their success was their unification as a team. The team also gave credit to the perfectionist style of coaching of Mr. Molley, an alumnus of Austin.

Ernie Ney and Vic Conti put in a great effort as guards and Tim Gormelly and Jay Kiskault were starting forwards. A strong bench also contributed substantially to their success.

frosh squash opponents with finesse

To be successful, a basketball team has to look good on the court, not just on paper. The team must work together to win, no matter what amount of talent they may have.

The 1970-1971 Freshman Basketball Team learned this during this year's season. They learned it the hard way, but they learned it. In October, they were seemingly a championship team, sporting a great deal of individual talent. However, these talents were used for the good of the individual, and not the good of the team. A poor start was the result, standing at 4-4 at mid-season mark.

However, Coach Bob Arthur finally got the team to "click" together. Stressing teamwork and a fast break, Coach Arthur rallied the Frosh to six straight victories. The season ended at eleven wins and seven defeats.

Individual standouts for the freshmen included: Craig Woods, Tom Klumpp, Dave Thieman, Dave Neveux, and Tom Capizzo throughout the year. Two fabulous frosh not playing with their colleagues were Charley Page and Vic Conti, who aided the J.V.'s in gaining a championship.

ABOVE FAR RIGHT: Even though the teams did not achieve athletic excellence, the participation of the students and the following of the White Shirted Legion was a form of excellence in itself. BELOW FAR RIGHT: With the changes made in 1971 many new and interesting things were added to the field of activities. The Mardi Gras dance was one of these, Tom Rabaut shows the imagination which the students put into this activity. RIGHT: The alumni and the parents helped in a time when most needed. 1971 marked the year of BINGO! The Mother and Dad Club's were also instrumental in the Rummage Sale, the Fiesta, and the Awards Dinner. BELOW: Once again the speakers of Austin excelled. They swept the Detroit Forensic League and did outstandingly in the Detroit Genesian and the state Speech Tournament. The coordinators of the Detroit Genesian, FIRST ROW: Sr. Jo Ann McNoy, Sr. Therese Tighe, Mr. Thomas St. Charles. SECOND ROW: Mr. Thomas Bailey, Miss Jeanne Zynde, Mrs. Veronica Francis.

change and achievement exemplify 1971

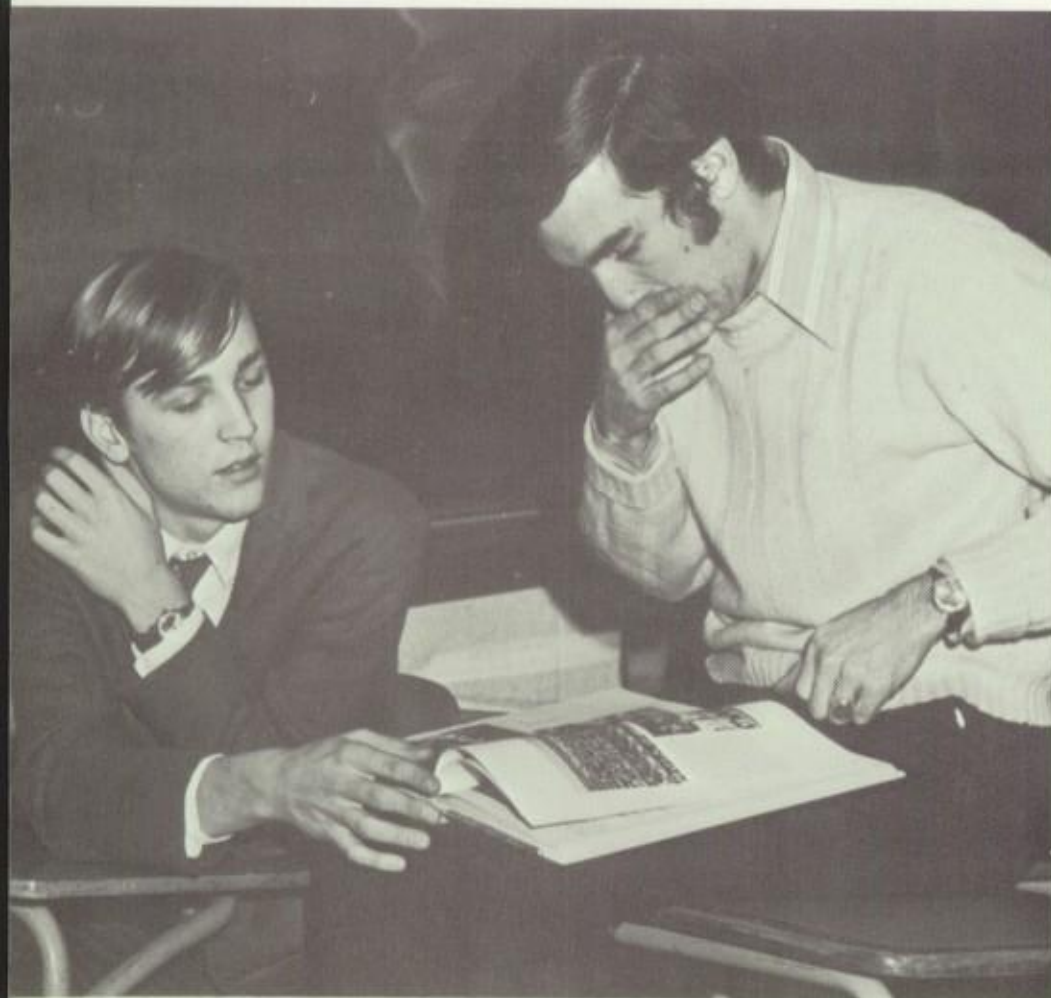

"Time it was . . .

The 1971 Magistro theme is taken from the Paul Simon and Art Garfunkel album, Bookends. The album's title song makes one reminisce on things past, things that are only memories now. Several years from now, when you have nothing to do some night, pull the book off the shelf and dust the top. Your mind will flash back to four of the most exciting years in your life.

It was a time of change. During the change of the decade, you somehow changed yourself, progressing from a timid freshman to a readied senior. Both physically and mentally, high school prepared you for the macrocosm outside. It forced you to think, forced you to speak out, and forced you to become an individual. You could no longer rely on others for help — you had to do it yourself.

This was the time of change and achievement. Austin itself was a "time". And between these two white covers, your memories are preserved.

Burke field lies barren now, covered with patches of melting snow. I have looked at it from room 26 (the yearbook room) now for the last seven months. I've seen the world, the times, the school, and myself change. It all started in September, beginning to plan the book, and the football team practicing on the field. Then it was winter and the field was covered with a shroud of new snow, and the first and second deadlines were in the mail. Now there is the feel of Spring in the air, the spring sports are beginning to work out on the field and this is the final yearbook copy.

There is an old axiom "give credit where credit is due". I must give a lot of credit to the entire staff as small as it may be. It is hard to state my gratitude for the many hours of work they put in. I would first like to thank Mr. Bob Berschback, the Magistro advisor. Bob helped with the problems of planning, form, and content. Bob was always there to help me organize during my many frantic times.

Anyone who holds a position has a right hand man. Pat Roney was undoubtedly mine. Pat was both associate and photography editor. Pat was there with the pictures and helped me make many of the major decisions. The pictures this year were beyond a doubt the best Austin has ever seen. Good pictures make the layout work so much easier. Working with Pat was head photographer, Jim Adams. Jim developed and printed most every picture in the book. Both Pat and Jim attended a photography camp this summer. Since the book is 90% pictures, it is hard to express my thanks for these two great guys.

Good copy is also essential for a good yearbook. In this department we have Rick Berschback, copy editor. Rick has a different and unique style of writing, which makes the copy throughout the book interesting. Working in Rick's corner is Dennis Bailey. Dennis, assistant copy editor, is responsible for those witty captions in this book.

There is one person who worked the closest with me during the year, assistant editor, Ed Lundy. While Pat and Jim were off taking pictures and Rick assigning and writing copy, Ed was up in Room 26 with me. He did a great amount of the work in make-up, making and 3-Ring layouts. He took care of the minute details and checking to see if everything was in the proper order.

My last thanks has to go to the school. Austin is a great institution, with a bunch of great guys. "What a time it was," I'll never forget the White Shirts Legion, the rallies, and the good times. "Preserve your memories there all that's left you."

Joseph Padesky
Editor of the 1971 Magistro
